TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

1916 is leaded into the stained-glass window.
I stand now fifty years later watching the sun
Stream through the jewels of glass
Making colored patterns on the floor.
I am part of an ancient pattern,
A tradition; time has held me four years green
In this school. Soon I will perform
The Ritual of leaving, the repeated
Ritual of centuries. I remember Hamlet,
Great-souled and melancholy, speaking
Across time and worlds in a sunlit classroom.
I remember the throb of a worm's red heart
And his death beneath my razor. The history
Of Babylon, the pyramids, Great Alexander
And the lofty Caesar I remember, and Kennedy dying one afternoon as I put my microscope away.
I have screamed our colors at rally,
I have sung the music of Chorus,
I have intoned the cadences of Latin.
Wise I am, and ready for another world's apocalypse.
The light streams through the window;
Farewell now, four years.

Linda Pierce 1965
